Editor’s Note: When students grow accustomed to being told what to say when they write for school, it causes a big problem that often plagues them even as they enter college: they do not view writing as a form of communication. I am proud to say that these students quickly realized that this was their chance to write about what was important to them. I hope you delight in these pieces as much as I enjoyed witnessing the writing processes of these bright students.

Presidential Election

by Shubha

Before the election:

Trump or Clinton? The votes will be made on November 8, 2016! Clinton promises to keep families together while they’re going through the tough process of immigration. Meanwhile, Trump, the money-saving-guy, plans on totally eliminating illegal immigration. Trump is planning on building a wall across the Mexico-U.S border with a loan of $1,000,000. Clinton plans on fighting for equal pay in businesses. She’s going to increase the minimum wage for all workers in America. Trump does not plan on increasing pay, as he feels it is much unneeded. Trump believes that people should be paid the amount they deserve, not the amount that the government demands. Clinton and Trump are all-in for the elections, but only one candidate will succeed. Who will win?

After the Election:

The results are counted and the votes are final! Donald Trump is successful in the race for president. Secretary Clinton won the popular vote, but failed to win the states with more electoral votes. America is NOT responding to Trump’s success in the best way, though. All over the country, people are protesting about the president-elect. Marches throughout America have begun. African Americans are being treated unfairly. Children all over America cry to their parents, wondering what will happen to them when Trump gets control of America. America is afraid of Trump’s political position, so why did he win?

Trump is a businessman and he’s stubborn and he knows what’s best. President-Elect Trump will make good deals for the future of our country, and refuse the bad ones. Some people voted for him because they didn’t want to vote for Clinton, even if they didn’t like Trump either. Voters were afraid of war with Syria, which Clinton said that she would start on the first day of being president. On Election Day, NBC news stated that there was a “secret” Trump vote. Citizens were too embarrassed to admit that they supported Trump, so they said that they favored Clinton. This is why America thought that there was no chance of Donald Trump winning the election. During the vice-presidential debate, Tim Kaine said that America was afraid of Trump. He might not have been very correct.

Whether America wants it or not, Trump will lead America for the next four years (maybe eight). Let’s make the best of it and enjoy the new rules that the future has set for America. Just don’t forget, by the time Donald Trump walks out of presidential office, the next ruler of America will be up to you.

World’s Largest Toy Distributor

by Srija Nelluri

Although it is simple to accuse McDonald’s for the U.S.’ childhood obesity troubles, many kids’ health may have changed from their parent’s response to the fast-food restaurants. Did you know that McDonald’s is the largest toy distributor in the world, even larger than a business literally called “TOYS-R-US”?

Back in June of 1979, when the Happy Meal was initially disclosed to the public, it only cost $1. The key idea to the Happy Meal has remained the same, but the public approach to McDonald’s most widely known big-named good has changed.

Obesity

As the years have passed, childhood obesity has been getting worse and worse. In 1980, seven percent of kids age 6-11 were obese. However, by 2008, twenty percent of kids age 6-11 were obese. This is a very big change in percentage in just about 30 years. This is because many kids eat fast food much too often. 37 percent of kids surveyed chose McDonald's as their fast food restaurant, while other restaurants got no more than 10 percent of the votes.

The amount of money McDonald's makes off of their Happy Meals annually is even more than the amount of sales revenue received by Burger King, Dairy Queen, Wendy's, Arby's, Denny's, and IHOP. It is clear that many children around the nation have become gluttons over fast food restaurants, such as McDonalds. This is why so many children are becoming obese.

McDonald's is the world's largest toy distributor. Many kids get the happy meal just to get the toy that comes along with it. According to surveys, 87 percent of kids ages 6-7 and 80 percent of kids age 8-9 say they got the happy meal because they could get a free toy.

A New Start

After McDonald's started getting criticized about how unhealthy their happy meals were, they started making their children's meals more nutritious. The happy meals now have fewer calories and have fruits as a side. Their chicken nuggets also have less sodium now. McDonald's claims that this is just a start and that they are going to continue to make their meals healthier as the years come. Let's hope it's true!

Dubai

By S.R.

Dubai is a place very much like a desert. In the middle of United Arab Emirates (UAE), it is not a popular tourist spot. However, this place has some of the greatest things in the world. For starters, it has the tallest tower in the world, the Burj Khalifa. It also has Yas Waterworld, a fabulous waterpark. This amazing waterpark has a variety of 42 roller coasters and waterslides as well as lazy rivers for those who don't like adventure. They have many food restaurants, cafes, and bars to satisfy your taste buds. No matter what, you can find cool things to do. Dubai has all of the best things and is a true beauty.

The Good and Bad Things about The Berkeley Academy Student Store

By Christopher and Alexander Lau

The Student Store is a store at Berkeley Academy that sells food. Now, from our experience, we will tell you about the good and bad things about the student store.

We will tell the bad things first. First, the student store has expensive prices. Here's a fact: the student store sells cup noodles for one dollar. Now, pretend you buy twenty-four of them at some Costco stores. Guess what the price is? Nine dollars. At the student store you get twenty-four for twenty-four dollars. That's almost three times more than Costco's price!

Second, the stock runs out quickly. There are about twenty-four cup noodles and about five to ten of everything else. If lots of kids shop at the student store, the stock is sure to run out. When the stock for one item runs out, a staff member has to get more from the storage. If there is none left, you can't purchase that item because it is sold out for the day.

Finally, the store has a limited menu. The store has less than ten items on rotation every day (also contributing to the low stock problem.) Plus, the store bans buyers from buying too much stuff.

Now we'll tell the good things. First, the store allows kids to buy stuff, unlike most other stores. Most stores only allow people aged 13 or older to shop. The student store, however, allows kids to buy snacks unlike most of the others!

The second perk is that your parents can bring in money for credit. Most other stores do not accept your parents putting in credit. The student store is possibly the ONLY store that lets your parents put in credit.

Even though the student store seems worse than it is, we still somewhat like it. We can get out after school to shop for snacks. Overall, it's okay.

Berkeley Academy: The Sixth Graders' Perspective

By Aarav, Aran, and Arjun

Our Perspective

In the world of Berkeley Academy, There are kindergarteners up to 8th graders. Each specific grade has a different room. Who are we? We are the sixth graders. Not to brag, but the sixth graders are the best. You are going to learn about Berkeley Academy from our perspective.

We Need Wi-Fi!

The first and second graders are always playing games and hogging the computers. When you play games, you are using the Wi-Fi and making it slow down for people who are actually doing work. It is only fair if everyone uses the computer for work ONLY until 5:00pm, when you can play games.

The Room for Us

Once upon a time, the sixth graders had a big room. Unfortunately for us, the kindergarteners took over the room. AND THEY GOT A COMPUTER TV! Don't ask me why they have the big room, they take up very minimal space. Their small bodies get the mammoth room, while we get the mouse room with desks that are less than half our arm-span. Since we are larger and need more room to do work, we should get a bigger room.

What about Google Hangouts?

Many fifth and sixth graders need Google Hangouts. Hangouts is a chat where you can discuss if you need homework help or need to talk to someone about group project. This has been blocked so some people can't double-check their homework questions. There is a person named Arjun (me) who doesn't have anyone in his class at Berkeley Academy currently. He needs Hangouts so he can double check with his friends for homework questions.

CREATIVE WRITING

Moving Day

By Phoenix

December 22, 2016

As I, Kimberly Walker, finished the last problem of my test, the bell rang. I was unhappy. The bell meant winter break was about to begin.

My best friend Tina sighed, "Ah! Break is going to be a blast!"

I think, "Really Tina? Really?"

Everyone at Harbor View High School knew me and my family were moving to a richer community, Silver Creek, for my mother's new job. I tried to act cool, but in my head, I was heartbroken. Tina sounded like she wanted me to go.

Usually, I tried to spend time with my friends and come home late, but today, I got home extra early. In fact, my nanny was quite surprised.

She asked, "Kimberly? You're home so early! Not hanging out with some friends?"

I cried. "It's Kim, and all of my friends hate me!" I don't know what happened, I just sat there and burst into tears. I tried to hold it but it flew out like a river.

"Kimberly, honey, what happened?" she asked me, putting her arm on my shoulder. Then, it all poured out. I sat there and explained what had happened at school and what Tina said and how I was going to leave all of my friends to go to Silver Creek. My nanny, of course, wasn't prepared. I never cried. If something happened to me, usually writing in my diary (like I am now) calmed me down. As I sat there, feeling bad, my nanny brought me some cupcakes and punch.

At five-forty, the bell rang and I jumped and answered the door. It was Tina!

I asked rudely, "Why are you here?"

Tina replied "Oh just giving you a piece of news! Here to hang with you, girl!" I laughed and told Tina, "Sorry. Do you want cupcakes?"

Tina and I played till my parents came home and asked her politely to leave.

My mother asked me, "Are you sure you're fine with this move?"

My father told my mother, "Kayla, she has to be okay with this. Besides, she needs to learn to be able to deal with decisions that she doesn't like. This old house is pretty much falling apart! In fact, I have no idea why the Heathertons want a house like this!"

Editor's Note: Although some of these creative pieces are rather long, I knew as soon as I read them that they deserved to be shared. Enjoy!

I thought "Like this? Like this, dad? Really? You've lived your whole life here! I love my room all blue and white!" My younger brother Mark told our parents, "Why don't you just buy Mr. and Mrs. Clementine's house?"

My brother is only ten years old, and he's so naive! I seriously wish that I was an only child or maybe that I had a twin sister.

My dad just chuckles and says, "Oh Mark, why don't you just let your mom make your room?" I was about to mention all of my friends but my mom was so happy I didn't want her to be upset.

Instead, I said "This move will be really fun getting away from my fourteen-year home, Harbor View, to Silver Creek."

I almost snarled at the end, but my mom was too happy to understand!

December 29

OMG I love my new school! My homeroom teacher, Ms. Lessard, is really kind! She even gave us her number for homework help! Which teacher does that? My last teacher Mr. Franks would only say every day "Do your work quietly"

Anyway, I met three girls I adore! Nella Larsen, Tiffany Adams, and Jennie Dixon!

Ha! Do you really believe that?

My real day was I met Ms. Lessard and she said, "Oh hi Kimberly, sit in the back seat, it's yours." Then at that exact moment she yelled, "Nathan put down that ruler now!"

After that the only girls I met were Erica, Jackie, and another one of her henchgirls. Three mean cheerleader girls who on purpose threw away my lunch!

They were all like, "Oh that corny lunch bag was yours?"

Then Erica whispered pretty loud, "AS IF anyone in Silver Creek High would talk to her!"

All of the other people I met were avoiding me or saying mean remarks such as "Hey Harbor View girl!" So after Erica, Jackie, and Taylor made fun of me and named me "Harbor View girl," everyone acted like they were too good for me!

December, 30, 2016 girl's bathroom

Oh my god! I publicly harassed three girls! They totally deserved it, but publicly harassed!??? I have never ever done that, even to Tiffany who messed up my desk! So why did I ruin three girls lives? Okay, so at lunch I was frustrated and I was almost done with my lunch so I grabbed my cupcake and money for ice cream and a drink. After that Jackie, Erica, and the other girl threw away my lunch, taunted me, and they should have left. After that I got so angry that I threw a cupcake with all my might at Jackie's body. Erica and the other girl were so shocked they stared at me with their mouth hanging. Then Erica was laughing at Jackie, which made me madder, so I squirted my grape juice all over Erica's "prized" sweater. The other girl was laughing her head off. So I smeared my Nutty Royale ice cream on her sweater. Unlucky for them (and me), the Newspaper club was having a meeting for a new article! The photographer took individual pictures of me and them!

December 30, after being at Principal Jenkins office

Aaaaah! Remember my horrible incident with those girls? I got stuck at Mr. Jenkins office. Mr. Jenkins was cool about it and said that these girls were always like that! COOL! If this happened at Harbor View Ms. Franks would have given me a lecture and called my parents.

I couldn't believe what nice teachers they had here. And I'm so excited about tomorrow night. A girl invited me (and other girls) to a sleepover! SQUEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEE EEEE!!!!!!!!!!!

December 30, 2016

I went to the sleepover and it was just so AMAZING!!!!!! I had a blast playing and having fun. Then later, we went into the house to eat snacks and watch a movie. Then we slept. OMG! In the morning, (btw there were only two other girls besides me), we had pancakes with sausages and tons of maple syrup and whipped cream. HEAVEN!!!!!! Anyways, now I'm sitting in my cool bedroom that my mom made (it's underwater themed which is pretty cool).

January 5, 2016

I made friends! Their names are Amara, Kacey and Tania. I went to them to ask about my class schedule and they were so kind about my incident with those girls. Kacey and her friends were saying stuff like "You're SO cool!" and "You rock!" Wait someone's texting me!

Kaystar: Hi are you there?

Stargirl: Hi Kayla! Been long how r you?

Kaystar: Okay do you know T's been bad mouthing you?

Stargirl: NO! Bye have class got to go

Okay honestly I didn't have a class but I didn't want to talk to Kayla about my EX-BFF with an old EX-BFF. Kind of ironic right? I'm glad I left because I realized that I was right about Tina when I thought she was glad I was leaving. Anyway, since my parents gave me this diary to cope with leaving, I'm going to trash this. I'm fine with leaving.

Bob the Bomber

by Alexander and Christopher Lau

Bob the bomber was a very stupid man.

Every day he liked to bomb the machines for no reason.

Rick the rabbit-catcher got tired of his act.

Killing Bob the bomber would be ideal.

Eventually he snuck up behind him and got a knife.

Laughing, he swung the knife down...

Except he cut the apple near Bob. Yep, he was not happy at all.

After that, Bob went back to bombing.

Crazily, he ran out of bombs.

After he ran out of bombs, he went to jail and died.

Dead, he went to the afterlife.

Extremely satisfied, Rick left.

Moral: Don't bomb machines or you'll end up in jail.

Yeah, but they found Christie, the construction worker instead. The End.

Lights Out House Escape

by the Ghostbusters

Everything's ruined. You went on a vacation to your friend's mansion near the woods. Your friend invited you over to betray and kill you because you annoy him a lot. Everyone evacuated the city because he claimed a ghost would rise up and kill all the people. Because your friend locked you in and prevents you from escaping, he is now your enemy. All you seek is getting out of here and attacking your friend. Hurry! A bomber is coming to destroy the house for everyone's safety... except yours. The bomber is scheduled to bomb the mansion at 7:00. It's 6:50!!! To escape, there are two doors. One says F5Y. Another says DOOM. If you go toward DOOM, go to box DOOM. If you go through F5Y, go to box F5Y.

F5Y

You go into F5Y, having bad thoughts about the door DOOM. You find some abandoned furniture and baby drawings in the room. Then lightning zaps like a flickering lamp. A creepy orphaned kid named Kilo comes from the closet and says "Play with me... I only want a friend..." If you play with the kid, go to box 5YM. If you don't, go to box TU7.

DOOM

When you walk in the room labelled DOOM, an assassin and a Minotaur find you and look in your direction. They both look very fierce, but you MUST walk to one or they'll kill you as you go around. Jeez! If you choose the assassin, go to box EQ4. If you choose the Minotaur, go to box R59.

5YM

You survive for a long, long time until the bomber comes! You try to escape, but you can't! He bombs the house! Somehow you survive by just getting lucky, but you forgot about the kid. The kid squeezes your neck, then he squeezes you to death! Don't worry. Restart from the beginning. You have infinite chances.

TU7

Abandoning the kid kills him from heartbreak and depression. Behind his corpse is a hidden passageway. You go in. In the room... is a hallway. You notice F5Y and DOOM again. Aww dang! There were TWO routes from F5Y to the hallway? Come on! Then you hear everything resetting, and your character is reset. The kid revives himself, and the hidden door closes. You just shrug. Restart from the beginning. You have infinite chances.

EQ4

The assassin lets you have his gun. You kill the Minotaur this way. Then a monster appears. A villain was right beside the Minotaur. You must attack one with your gun. If you attack the monster, go to box T8H. If you attack the villain, go to box LO3.

R59

The Minotaur eats you without hesitation because he is famished. You die from sharp fangs and thirst inside the Minotaur's body. Don't worry. Just restart from the beginning. You have infinite chances.

T8H

Attacking the monster allows the villain to make you a milkshake. You drink it, but the milkshake is poisonous. You die shortly after. Don't worry. You have infinite chances. Just restart from the beginning.

LO3

You kill the villain. Then the monster bows down and sacrifices himself because the villain was his most treasured BFF and the monster is nothing without him. There are two portals behind the monster. If you choose the left one, go to box LC9. If you choose the right one, go to box LOSS.

LC9

The portal sends you forward in time to EXACTLY when the bomber bombs the house, and you die from the G-Force caused by the explosion. Don't worry. Restart from the beginning as many times as you want.

LOSS

The right portal sends you back in time. You evacuate and kill your "friend" so that you would have never been trapped. You escape your friend's house! YAY!!!
